

JOSHUA R JONES

WEB DESIGNER

PROFILE

At age 10, when I first had the complexity of the Internet explained to me, I rushed to my room gathering any “Star Wars” toys within reach & shared my master plan to my parents. I had a desire to create the greatest “Star Wars Toy Collection” web site known to man.

While slightly silly looking back on it now, the fire I had burning for web development back then is still very present today. I continued to pursue an understanding of computers & the Internet as a whole. My quest for knowledge didn’t end at just designing high quality web sites, but went further into understanding how operating systems worked, & the steps required for running a secure web server.

It’s thanks to my love for technology & parents that didn’t mind me camping out in the “batcave” all night that I have achieved this level of experience & skill. I continue to teach myself new & upcoming languages in pursuit of building high quality & standards driven sites pushing forward for a better web.

EXPERIENCE

WEB DEVELOPER | VPLS INC - ORANGE, CA 2009 - PRESENT

I am currently a Web Developer for VPLS Inc, working with a team of highly knowledgeable developers while designing multiple internal & external sites for the company.

WEB DEVELOPER | JOSHUA JONES DESIGN - FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA 2007 - 2009

After the closing of CompUSA, I tried my hand at freelancing & designing professional web sites for different companies. Many larger companies, such as Experian & Dekra-Lite, have hired me to design and code their sites for them. I still perform freelance work, but it depends on the size of the project & my current work load.

WAREHOUSE MANAGER & MORE | OFFICE DEPOT - FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA 2007 - 2008

I use the term “Warehouse Manager” carefully, because it was not an actual management position where I had employees to manage. The term “Warehouse Manager” simply refers to the fact that I performed all of the backend tasks to keep the store running smoothly, including banking. When needed, I would also aid in the Sales & the Copy and Print departments.

SALES | COMPUSA - FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA 2005 - 2006

My year with CompUSA was short lived due to their unfortunate choice to close down the stores. (now currently owned by SysteMax) I began in Sales & was being trained to become a manager. I

SKILLS

My time freelancing has allowed me to sharpen my web development knowledge to a very sharp point. I have experience with many of the popular software suites, such as the Adobe Creative Suite & Microsoft Office, along with extensive knowledge of Windows, Mac, and Linux Operating Systems. I prefer to hand-write all my code ensuring higher quality & to meet my increased level of standards.

I am a geek.
